Dear [REDACTED]
This will confirm our recent telephone conversations in which I stated that our interest in a stationary satellite system is a continuing one, but we have postponed any meetings on this subject until after the first of the year.

We believe there are probably applications for such a system in our lines of work, but the pressure of other business and the need for further technical studies and evaluations of this system and its merits in relation to other systems preclude our going forward with it at this time.

Please be assured that shortly after the first of the year, we will contact you again regarding this matter. Please feel free to call me any time you are in Washington and wish to discuss this or similar subjects.

Very truly yours,

[REDACTED]
